CAMP ZOO AT THE LONG ISLAND GAME FARM Learn about Animals, Zoos, and Wildlife Conservation

This season, The Long Island Game Farm is inviting children from all over Long Island to Camp Zoo. Camp Zoo is a week-long day camp with weekly sessions beginning July 5, 2004 and running until August 20, 2004. Designed for first through third graders, Camp Zoo will provide children with a fun-filled, rich learning environment they will remember all year.

Each day at Camp Zoo will offer new and exciting experiences such as zoo-tours, up-close animal encounters and keeper talks with the Game Farm's zoo keepers. In addition, there will be arts and crafts activities, animal stories and sing-alongs, nature-related games, and informative animal tours. Special behind the scenes activities will be offered, and are only available to children who attend Camp Zoo.

Camp Zoo has been developed with the guidance of Irene Nowell, former Superintendent of Schools at Remsenburg-Speonk UFSD and current Education Field Supervisor at Dowling College. Campers will be supervised and instructed by a New York State Certified teacher and a counselor for a class ratio of approximately 8-1.

Registration for Camp Zoo begins on April 1, 2004. The Long Island Game Farm can accept about 15 campers for each session of Camp Zoo, so sign up early. Each session will take place at the Game Farm from 10:00 a.m. to 3:00 p.m., Monday through Friday. The Game Farm is located in Manorville just off exit 70 on the Long Island Expressway and no more than an hour from just about anywhere on Long Island.

"We can't wait to get started with Camp Zoo. This program is as exciting for us as it will be for the young campers. The camp is the ultimate animal experience where children will learn in-depth about different animals and wildlife issues. Our mission has always been to offer high-quality fun and education to families across Long Island and Camp Zoo takes that concept one step farther to really get the kids involved," said Melinda Novak, Co-Owner of the Long Island Game Farm.

New for 2004 is our Camp Zoo program for children from across Long Island.

Long Island Game Farm Opens for 2004 Season

The Long Island Game Farm kicked off the spring season with a special sneak preview by opening for the week of April 3 -10. Beginning on April 11th, the Long Island Game Farm is open week-ends only until May 1st. After May 1st, the Game Farm will remain open daily until October 11th. This marks the Game Farm’s 35th year of providing high quality fun and education to families throughout Long Island.

“We are very excited to begin our 35th season of serving the Long Island regional community. Our Park provides an ideal moderate-cost destination where the whole family can learn and interact with nature and the animal kingdom. Again, this year, thousands of young students will pass through our park and learn first-hand about what they are taught in school,” said Diane Novak, Co-Owner and President of the Long Island Game Farm.

One of the best times of the year to visit the Game Farm is early Spring, when many of the animals have given birth to newborns. In past years, our newborns have included Barbados Sheep, rabbits, chicks, goats, as well as several Ring-Tailed Lemurs. In the past four years, 10 baby lemurs have been born in the Long Island Game Farm. Within weeks two baby black bear cubs will also arrive and take on quarters in the Game Farm’s baby bear nursery.

“It only takes a few minutes at the Game Farm at this time of the year to enjoy the miracle of Spring as you interact with all of the newborns around the park,” said Novak.

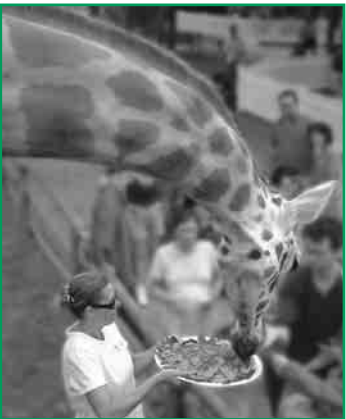

The Long Island Game Farm Wildlife Park and Children’s Zoo features hundreds of animals and many interactive areas where guests can touch and, unlike most zoos, actually feed the animals! During the summer season, a 500 seat amphitheater serves as center stage for entertainment and educational programs. Children can also enjoy one of the carnival-style rides such as the carousel, Rio Grande Train, or Teacups. The Game Farm offers pony rides as well.

New for 2004 Special Group Rates

This season, The Long Island Game Farm will offer special discounted group rates. This makes the Game Farm an ideal location for your child’s next birthday party or your school’s next field trip. The Long Island Game Farm is sure to be a trip that kids will remember! We have loads of fun and educational activities for kids of all ages.

With so much to do at the Game Farm, kids will be occupied all day. Between our Big Cat Encounters, showing twice a day from Memorial Day to Labor day; our carnival style rides such as the Rio Grande Mini Train, Spinning Teacups, and the Antique Carousel; and our interactive animal areas, a trip to the Game Farm is sure to please just about anyone.

The Long Island Game Farm is the perfect destination for your family’s next birthday party or reunion, or for your school’s Spring 2004 field trip. If you plan for a day trip, you can rest and eat lunch in one of our large picnic areas and quickly get back to the fun! The Game Farm is the best value in your own backyard – we are conveniently located just off exit 70

Big Cat Encounter – Returning for 2004

The Big Cat Encounter, featuring endangered and exotic lions and tigers, takes center stage at the Game Farm’s 500-person amphitheater twice daily between Memorial Day and Labor Day.

Meet rescued lions and tigers up close and personal. You'll laugh, be entertained and educated as you participate in this rare experience with Clayton Rosaire, the world's youngest lion and tiger trainer, and his family of endangered and exotic big cats. Plus, stop by our "Big Cat" viewing area and watch them play between our daily shows.

Deputy Sheriffs Participate in Long Island Game Farm Child Safety Day

Pictured are Suffolk County Deputy Sheriffs Matt Mullins and Mike McLean with Nancy Grathwohl of East Marion holding her son Bryce as his fingerprints are taken to complete a child safety kit during the Long Island Game Farm’s 2003 Child Safety Day. Members of Suffolk County Deputy Sheriff’s Police Benevolent Association were on hand along with members of Parents for Megan’s Law to provide important child safety information during the event.
