Game Farm Opens for 34th Season Experience the Miracle of Spring by Visiting Game Farm Newborns

With signs of Spring evident by the scores of newborns ranging from Ring-Tailed Lemurs to Barbados sheep, the Long Island Game Farm kicked off its 34th season of providing high quality educational family-oriented entertainment on April 19th.

Located off exit 70 of the Long Island Expressway, the Long Island Game Farm Wildlife Park and Children's Zoo features hundreds of exotic and domestic animals, including zebra, cougars, alligators, a giraffe and the only lemurs bred and born on Long Island. The Game Farm has scores of interactive areas where guests can touch and feed the animals. The park also features children's rides, including a carousel, teacups, Rio Grande Train as well as a 500 seat amphitheater that serves as center stage for entertainment and educational programs.

"We are very excited to begin our 34th season of serving the Long Island regional community. Our park provides the ideal moderate-cost destination where the whole family can learn and interact with nature and the animal kingdom. Again, this year, thousands of young students will pass through our park and learn first-hand about what they are taught in school," said Diane Novak, Co-Owner of the Game Farm.

One of the best times of the year to visit the Game Farm is the early Spring, when many of the animals have given birth to newborns. This year's newborns include Barbados Sheep, donkeys, rabbits, ducks, goats, baby

Ring-Tailed Lemurs Born at Game Farm

Multiple Births by Primates Native to Madagascar

In early April, several Ring-Tailed Lemurs were born at the Long Island Game Farm to two mothers included in its featured Ring-Tailed Lemur attraction. It is the the third consecutive year of lemur births at the Game Farm, the only ever born on Long Island. In each of the previous two years, only one birth occurred.

"We are so very pleased to see that our family of Ring-Tailed Lemurs are thriving on Long Island. Our visitors always enjoy their playfulness. With several newborns clinging to their mothers and taking their first swings around their home in the coming weeks, it is truly a wonderful time to visit our park and enjoy the miracle of Spring in person," said Diane Novak, Co-Owner of the Long Island Game Farm.

The Ring-Tailed Lemurs are native of the southern tip of Madagascar. They were named for their eye-catching black and white tails ringed with thirteen alternating bands. The Ring-Tailed Lemur is a day-active primate and is one of the most terrestrial species of lemurs native to Madagascar. They inhabit the dry scrub and deciduous forests of south and southwestern part of Madagascar. Lemurs live in groups of three to twenty individuals. Females are dominant over males and remain in their birth groups. Infants begin riding on their mothers' backs within two weeks of birth. However, in spite of such close contact, only about 40 percent reach maturity.
